

Membership in every major Palestinian political party is illegal under Israeli military occupation.

FREE AHMAD SA'ADAT AND ALL PALESTINIAN PRISONERS

Ahmad Sa'adat, General Secretary of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and member of the Palestinian Legislative Council, is one of over 5,200 Palestinian political prisoners held in Israeli jails. These political prisoners, men, women and children, are activists, organizers and political leaders of the Palestinian people.

Sa'adat was sentenced to 30 years in the occupation prisons on December 25, 2008 for "incitement," membership and leadership in the PFLP, his political party. All major Palestinian political parties are banned by the Israeli occupation as "illegal organizations."

- These prisoners can be charged with any offenses created by Israeli military command.
- Palestinian prisoners face military courts, with a 99.74% conviction rate for Palestinians brought before them.
- 40% of Palestinian men in the West Bank and Gaza Strip have spent time in Israeli prisons.
- Palestinians can be held without charge or trial in "administrative detention," and any evidence against them is secret.
- Over 5,200 Palestinians are held as political prisoners in Israeli jails.

Ahmad Sa'adat has been targeted as a Palestinian political leader. He is a symbol of both Israel's eagerness to imprison and silence Palestinian prisoners, and of Palestinian resilience and resistance, even behind bars in occupation prisons. The freedom of Ahmad Sa'adat and his 5,200 fellow prisoners requires international action and awareness.
